Bert Sierra So you chose to delete my prior comment about the product listed in the video as not matching the product listed on the dScarf website? I gave Jinnie Store the benefit of the doubt in proving this was not a misleading ad or outright case of bait-and-switch, and your action in not giving an above-board response shows what your intentions actually are with this add targeting my area.

The dScarf website also lists people every five seconds who have purchased the product, people who do not match any names of people in the area.

You appear to be a scam vendor, and I hope Facebook will take quick actions to shut this misleading advertising down. I have documented my interactions with you via captured PDFs, including this comment and the prior deletion of my comment pointing out the incorrect product listed.
